Children centre closure: Decision to be reviewed

A YOUNG mum is urging councillors to reverse a decision to close down a "much-needed" children's centre.

Jamie Pursey's plea follows an announcement that the decision to merge two of Haverhill's children's centres has been "called in".

The decision as it stands, which was made last week by Suffolk County Council's cabinet, would see one of the centres – On Track, in Strasbour Square – shut down, with services provided at Cartwheels Centre at the other end of town.

Jamie, who is 21, attends On Track every week with son Riley.

She said: "It is there to support mothers of all ages – being a mother is hard especially if it's your first child because you don't exactly know what to do."

Riley, who will turn 2 later this month, was suffering from behavioural problems, leading Jamie to doubt her parenting skills and feel depressed, she said.

"Knowing I am 10 minutes away from On Track, and I can go there any time to have a bit of a break, is great," she added. "It really is a safe haven for both of us."

The decision was "called in" by members of the county council's Labour group and the scrutiny committee will review the decision next Wednesday.

Cllr Bryony Rudkin is the Labour group's spokesperson for children and young people.

She said: "We do think that the information on which this decision was based is less than perfect."

DEBRA FOX

The financial side "doesn't seem to stack up", the councillor said, and services will still need to be provided in alternative locations – which will come with a cost.

The county council seemed "torn" between saying the decision was based on academic research or money saving, Cllr Rudkin added.

Anne Gower, who this week resigned from her post as county councillor due to changes in personal circumstance, fought against the proposal from day one, saying it would affect too many vulnerable families.

She urged her colleagues to refuse the children's centres review at last week's cabinet meeting.

Speaking to the Weekly News, she said: "I am very, very pleased it's been called in. If they overturn the decision, particularly for On Track, I would be absolutely delighted."

Being able to attend On Track has made a difference to Riley's development, Jamie said, with her son starting to talk and interact more than he ever was before.

"He is a lot more loving, he is kinder and that is because of the help I have been receiving from On Track." She added: "I wish I had that help when I was little, it's a great facility."

Couple fined over account records

A COUPLE must pay thousands of pounds after failing to keep adequate accounting records for their former business.

Steven and Katja McCabe were found guilty of failing to preserve proper records for their art and framing company in Haverhill for more than three years.

W & G Art and Framing Limited, run by both husband and wife, was wound up in 2011 after running up a deficit of nearly a million pounds.

Following an investigation by the Department for Businesses, Innovation and Skills, nobody was able to explain whether the transfer of two large sums of £350,000 and £105,000 by the company were legitimate.

Kathy Bradshaw, prosecuting at Cambridge Crown Court this week, described the lack of compliance from the parents of two as "torturous". Interviews were not attended, records were not given and when information was provided it was like "pulling teeth", she told the court.

Mr and Mrs McCabe, of Stalde Farm, Little Walden, pleaded guilty to failing to co-operate with an office holder between March 2011 and March 2014 on information about the business.

The 45-year-old businessman resigned as the company's director in 2010.

Mrs McCabe, 42, took over the business before being disqualified from being a company director.

Mr McCabe also pleaded guilty to failing to preserve company accounting records from August 2009 to March 2014. Mrs McCabe pleaded guilty to the same count but from March 2010.

Mark Shelley, mitigating for Mrs McCabe, said failures were made during a "vicious downward spiral" of financial difficulties, leaving behind £70,000 of debt between them.

Mr McCabe, who has managed a number of companies, now runs a small business called W & G Idealdecor Limited which has an art shop.

Jacqueline Appleton, mitigating for Mr McCabe, added: "The family are trying to rebuild their lives."

Recorder Ann McAllister said: "There are question marks as to what happened to quite substantial sums of money."

"I regret that people don't comply with investigative processes."

They were fined £2,200 between them and were ordered to pay £2,000 towards the costs of prosecution.

Look for your long lost family with group

A FAMILY history group is inviting the public to explore their family trees.

Dr Karen Cummings joined Haverhill Family History Group at a free session last month to assist guests with researching their long lost families.

Now, the group is looking to this month's event, a talk on 20th Century Research by Ian Waller.

Following the talk, at Haverhill Library on Valentine's Day, members of the group will be on hand to help people further their own research.

Resident Bryan Mills has recommended the sessions after discovering family of his own.

The talk starts at 11am, with the help session running from 1pm until 4pm.

Growth on agenda for county with agreement

MILLIONS of pounds have been awarded to New Anglia LEP, unlocking development for Suffolk.

Money will be spent on improving and supporting businesses, developing West Suffolk College and "kick-starting" infrastructure building.

John Dugmore, chief executive of Suffolk Chamber of Commerce, has welcomed the Government's announcement, which came last week.

He said: "The announcement is a vote of confidence in our economy and will rightly see investment of over £13m to support small and medium-sized enterprises across Norfolk and Suffolk who want to invest and grow."

Jewellers sparkles with pride after award win from customer votes

A JEWELLERY company is taking home the crown for Haverhill's most loved business of the year.

Hanningtons Jewellers, which has two branches in the town, has won thebestof Haverhill Local and Loved Business Awards on a local and national level.

This means they are the most loved business in Haverhill for 2015.

They also received the highest vote for most loved jeweller in the UK.

Aron Woodward, manager, said: "Initially we were a bit shy to ask people to leave a review but the Local and Loved Awards gave us the incentive we needed.

"Now we know that people are happy to acknowledge good service."

The three week campaign encourages customers to leave positive reviews of their favourite local companies.

Hanningtons beat last year's winners Dizzy's Day Nursery by only a handful of votes to become the town's most loved business.

Dizzy's retained its most loved nursery award for the second year.

Preview Property Services came in third place.

The business awards run across thebestof branches nationally.

Elaine Carr, is the owner of the Haverhill branch.

She said: "I am incredibly proud of our business members who have taken part in Local and Loved this year.

"It's an honour to represent them."

Share views on transport problems

PATIENTS travelling to hospital in Suffolk are being asked for their views on transport.

A survey, launched by Healthwatch Suffolk, is calling for residents to share their experiences of getting to hospital.

The questionnaire follows complaints made to Suffolk Community Transports, which operates 19 schemes county-wide, about accessing transport for appointments.

The umbrella group has called for "urgent" talks with health bosses because of the problem.

Haverhill is said to be among the "worst affected" areas.

Others include Bungay, Newmarket and Stowmarket.

Questions asked in the survey include how patients travel to GP and hospital appointments, how much transport costs and if an appointment has ever been missed due to lack of transport.

A spokesman for Healthwatch Suffolk said: "Many in the transport community say the change has occurred since the NHS tightened its criteria for providing patients with free lifts."

NHS in Suffolk and Norfolk introduced a "single point of assessment" in 2011 to save money, they said.

Visit surveymonkey.com/r/BJMMCXJ to complete the survey online, or call (01449) 703949 for help and information.

'A1307 is full of people leaving'

NATALIE ROBINSON

MORE effort is needed to develop Haverhill town centre and provide more jobs for local people.

That is the message from local residents who attended a public meeting held by West Suffolk MP Matthew Hancock on Friday.

Residents told the MP that while they are hearing that things are improving, Haverhill continues to lose "vital" services.

Speaking at the meeting, which was held at The New Croft, one person said: "People want to change and expand the town but there are things that just aren't happening."

"The people here want to see fibre optic broadband and 4G coverage. But instead all we see is houses going up and nothing moving."

They added: "People are going to accident and emergency because they can't get into the doctors. There's no walk in centre. Things like that we are losing."

"All we see is people travelling down the A1307 to Cambridge – because there is nothing here."

HEARING VIEWS: MP Matthew Hancock.

"That road is so busy for eight hours of the day because there is nothing in Haverhill for local people. We wouldn't have such a busy road if there were more jobs in the town."

But Mr Hancock told the residents that he had held meetings with the chief executive of Vodafone in order to secure fibre optic broadband – and it should be fully rolled out in the town by 2020.

The MP added: "One of the things I like most about representing Haverhill is that it is supportive of getting more jobs and development here.

"We all want the research park to succeed and expand. The can-do attitude is a bonus for the town."

Despite concerns raised about the number of jobless in the town, Mr Hancock said the number claiming job seekers' allowance had fallen.

He said: "This is a fantastic achievement for the whole town, not just all of those people who now have an income, but also the companies who have been able to expand their businesses."

Residents also reacted to the news, reported last week, that plans to change the old magistrates' court into a youth hub had been abandoned.

One resident said: "Is there anything more in the pipeline to help teenagers to get them off the streets? They have nowhere to go and that's why some are getting into trouble and doing stuff they shouldn't be."

But they were told that to lease the youth court, the council would have had to find £909,000 for five years' lease which would "take all the money out of Haverhill".

Councillors decided last week to explore other options for youth provision.

Councillor resigns from county post

DEBRA FOX

A HAVERHILL county councillor has resigned from her post with immediate effect.

Cllr Anne Gower was elected to Suffolk County Council in 2009, and was re-elected in 2013.

This week, she announced her resignation from the position, due to a change of personal circumstance.

Cllr Gower, who has also served on St Edmundsbury Borough Council since 2007, will be moving out of the county.

She had already decided not to stand for re-election to the borough in May.

Speaking to the Weekly News, she said: "All I would like to say is that it has been a privilege to serve the people of Haverhill for the past six years as county councillor."

"I am sorry that I have had to make this difficult decision."

"I have enjoyed very much working with Cllr Julian Flood and Cllr Tony Brown and I know I am leaving things in their capable hands until the election for my replacement takes place in May."

Cllr Gower made the decision to resign

STANDING DOWN: Cllr Anne Gower

from Suffolk County Council at around Christmas, she said, but had "one or two things" she wanted to finish working on first.

The councillor formally objected to the closure of Haverhill's On Track Centre, which was decided last week by the council's cabinet.

Cllr Gower also served as a town councillor between 2007 and 2011.

ALL ABOUT DOGS: Ms Zwierzchowska-Dod with Flash, some pupils and Jo Goodman from the Dogs Trust. Picture: Keith Heppell

Pupils learn more about man's best friend

CHILDREN found out more about some furry friends with a recent visit from the Dogs Trust.

Jo Goodman from the charity visited Clements Community Primary School yesterday for a day of activities with the pupils.

Headteacher at the school, Caroline Zwierzchowska-Dod, even brought her husky Flash in for the day so he could join in too.

She said: "I think it's really important that children know how to stay safe around dogs because so many families have a dog and our school is near to two dog walking fields."

During the day, the children were taught how to approach dogs safely and how to ask an owner's permission – before testing their skills on rescue dog Flash.

The whole school enjoyed an assembly from the charity, and four sessions for pupils aged between 7 and 11 were held throughout the day.

One child said: "I know what to do when I meet a dog now."

"I like the Dogs Trust people as they save dogs' lives."

'We want our communities to be self reliant'

DEBRA FOX

FAMILIES are being urged to "take ownership" of their communities for the future.

This is the message from St Edmundsbury Borough Council, following the announcement of its budget for the forthcoming financial year.

The local authority, which is headed by leader Cllr John Griffiths, has recommended a council tax freeze for the fifth consecutive year – and hopes to "help communities to help themselves" with upcoming work and ideas.

Cllr Sara Mildmay-White is the council's deputy leader. She said: "We want to move things on so we are not stuck in our ways. Things need to change."

"In Haverhill, it's about the research park and getting high quality jobs in the town."

The new research park has been highlighted as one of the borough's key investments, alongside West Suffolk College's new technology centre, and the Eastern Relief Road in Bury St Edmunds.

Services have been changed in such a way that they reflect the needs of families now, and what they want to see, Cllr Mildmay-White added.

LEADER: Cllr John Griffiths. It is recommended council tax is frozen for the fifth consecutive year

"As councillors and your local council we have committed to a programme of financial discipline, and it's really stood us in good stead," she said.

In Haverhill, the ongoing transfer of the Chalkstone Community Centre has been recognised as a way to deliver the services which the local community wants to see, as has giving ONE Haverhill the power to consult on the town centre masterplan.

This reflects one of the borough's three key priorities for the future – families and communities. The other priorities are economic growth, and homes.

Each borough councillor also has a locality budget of £2,500 to spend in their community, Cllr Mildmay-White said, which enables changes to be made to reflect the public's needs.

Cllr David Ray, cabinet member for resources, has said that where the council can choose to spend its money, it will invest in its residents.

He added: "Where we have choices, we choose to focus on the things that are really important to people – jobs, homes and their families and communities."

Substantial savings have been made through the borough's partnership work with Forest Heath District Council.

Around £128,000 has been saved through "supplies and service efficiencies" from the authorities' shared services.

The borough council cabinet will meet on February 10 to recommend the budget to full council.

The budget decision will be formally made by the full council on February 24.

Man took lethal overdose

A HAVERHILL man found dead in Beck Row took a lethal amount of heroin, an inquest heard.

Ty Aldrich was found dead on October 21 last year at a property in the village's Wilde Street.

An inquest into the death of the Mr Aldrich, who was 32 and lived on Wellum Close, Haverhill, was held in Bury St Edmunds on Monday.

Mr Aldrich was discovered on a bed in the house, the hearing was told.

Beside him was an empty syringe, a spoon, a needle and a small dish.

Dr Daniel Sharpstone, assistant coroner for Suffolk, told the inquest that there was a presence of "street heroin" in Mr Aldrich's body.

A post mortem examination revealed that the level of heroin was well above that normally associated with fatal consequences, he said.

The assistant coroner recorded Mr Aldrich died as a result of a heroin overdose.

Valentine's disco to aid charity research

A POP up disco is taking place next week.

Lovebirds, friends and families are being invited to do their bit for charity with the Valentine's Day event at Haverhill Arts Centre.

Raising money for Bone Cancer Research Trust, the disco, with a "school disco" theme, will start at 8pm and run until midnight next Saturday.

It is being organised by the Gower family, who lost their daughter Jess to primary bone cancer in 2010.

They were approached for the disco following a late cancellation at the centre.

Mum Shirley Gower said: "It was a lovely surprise to be offered the chance to use the arts centre for a fundraising event, but also a challenge with only two weeks to get things organised."

"We are really grateful to Nick and to Danny Grimshaw who agreed to DJ on the night.

"It is hoped people will enter into the spirit of the event and come out with friends for an "old school" evening of socialising and dancing."

Tickets will cost £5 and be available on the door on the night.

If you want further details email shirlnew@aol.com. You can also call Haverhill Arts Centre on (01440) 714140.

Sorry to see Anne go

ALTHOUGH she belongs to a different party, I was sad to hear of Suffolk County Councillor Anne Gower's resignation.

At our level of politics, the level where the important things get dealt with – things like roads and trees and housing, things like families and people – there is little difference between political parties.

We are all more interested in getting things done rather than what colour someone is elected under.

UKIP, Labour or Conservative, everyone wants what's best for Haverhill.

Anne worked hard for our residents and it was painful to see her fighting and losing against the cuts. In particular I will miss her advice about our housing problems which she gave freely and generously.

I will still be representing Haverhill Cangle at the county council, and Tony Brown is just next door. The battle goes on.

Reach out to help blind

WITH the chill of winter upon us, Action for Blind People is urging readers to spare a thought for residents with sight loss.

Many people who are blind or partially sighted find it difficult to get out and about on their own; particularly in crowded places, when it's frosty and hazardous under foot, and when there's less daylight and shorter days. They can't see the obstacles and dangers ahead of them.

If you know anyone who is blind or partially sighted, help make sure they're not left isolated by the cold weather. The majority of people with sight loss are elderly and are particularly vulnerable. You can help by:

■ Contacting visually impaired neighbours to make sure they're okay.

■ Offering to help them get out and about – perhaps driving them into town or helping them use public transport.

■ Being their sighted guide – walking with them around shops or on short journeys to friends or to their place of work.

■ Guiding them around icy and slippery surfaces, if it's frosty or snowing.

■ Simply giving them your phone number in case of emergencies. Action for Blind People provides a range of services for local visually impaired people of all ages; from confidence building 'Living with Sight Loss' courses, to employment and welfare guidance, and how to make the most of technology to help them live independently.

But if blind and partially sighted

Trial change

A PRIEST accused of fraud will stand trial a month later than anticipated.

Ian Finn, 55, pleaded not guilty last month to one count of fraud by abuse of position.

The trial will now begin on June 1, following an application from the Crown Prosecution Service.

Two cars damaged

TWO vehicles were damaged after a row between two people, police said.

Windscreens on both a grey Peugeot and a red Renault were smashed in Hales Barn Road on January 26.

The incidents occurred between midnight, and 12.20am.

It is believed there was an argument between a man and a woman and then the two vehicles were damaged.

Call 101 with any information.

Opportunist burglar strikes

AN opportunist burglar is being hunted by police after stealing a purse from a Haverhill home. The incident happened at a property in Kirtling Place, at around 7.40pm on Monday.

Those living at the home came back at around 7.30pm through the back door. After five minutes they went to the front room, before hearing the back door open and close quickly. They then discovered that a purse had been stolen from a table near the door. Contact 101 with information.

A1307 will be in city deal plan

IMPROVEMENTS to the A1307 will be a priority project in transport upgrades to the region.

The Greater Cambridge City Deal executive board voted last week to approve a list of schemes which will be delivered in the first five years.

Included, is a £39 million project to deliver "bus priority" measures on the A1307, as well as an additional park and ride site along the route.

The work was earmarked as a "reserve" project – but representations from the Greater Cambridge City Deal Assembly members led to its upgrade.

Colin Poole, town clerk, welcomed the announcement.

He said: "We need connectivity for transport; whether you think this is right or wrong is a matter of individual travel preference and there are no wrong answers, just different needs and aspirations."

"If Haverhill can grow successfully and that growth is facilitated by bus priority improvements to the A1307, that strengthens the argument for a railway, it doesn't diminish it."

Cllr Roger André, mayor, thanked the assembly for recognising the town's "requirements" and identifying Haverhill as a stakeholder.

Cllr Tony Brown welcomed Cambridgeshire's investment – while Cllr Julian Flood said improving the road for traffic should be the first port of call – not public transport.

Matthew Hancock West Suffolk MP, added: "A commitment of £38m for the A1307 is highly valuable and a big step forward for local people."

"We must ensure it is used to improve the road for all users, with safety as an absolutely priority."

We're walking in a winter wonderland

THE cold snap got well and truly under way this weekend as the white stuff arrived in the region.

Children donned their wellies, parents wrapped up warm and budding photographers got behind the lens to capture the winter weather at its finest.

A second flurry of snow arrived overnight on Monday.

Widespread frost is expected in Haverhill this weekend, with the occasional snow shower on Saturday.

Temperatures across the weekend will range from 5C down to 1C.

We love to see your pictures. Email them to: wendy.davey@cambridge-news.co.uk.

Ejector seat stunt film goes viral

A VIDEO which shows a teenager fracturing his spine in an "ejector seat" stunt has gone viral with more than 200,000 hits.

The clip, which was filmed in Haverhill's Osprey Road last Wednesday, shows 19-year-old Hari Farlie thrown into the air by the homemade contraption.

The ejector was made with two tyres, an unreleased airbag, and bits of wood. It was then hooked up to the car battery of a VW Bora.

Filed by Kyle Lyons, 24, the video shows Hari sitting on the airbag before being thrown into nearby undergrowth.

He suffered a fractured lumbar vertebra in the incident.

Hari spent the night in West
Suffolk Hospital but was released the next day.

Kyle said his friend will have to wear a back brace for three months after fracturing his spine in two places.

Speaking to the Weekly News, Hari said he saw the stunt in the film Bad Neighbours and "thought it looked funny".

"I thought 'I'll do it' but then obviously it wasn't as funny as it was in the film," he said.

"I was in hospital getting messages on Facebook from people saying, 'you're famous'."

He said he and his friends were always playing pranks.

Skateboarder Bam Margera, renowned for his own stunts on American TV shows Jackass and Viva La Bam, shared the video on his Facebook page.

In a post he said: "Devastating injury for this prankster who ended up in hospital."

Some of Margera's own injuries include breaking his tailbone while riding a bucket car down a hill, and breaking his ribs, clavicle and foot while filming for Jackass 3D.

Pupils' chance to design new logo

BUDDING artists are being given a chance to represent their school with a logo designing competition.

Pupils at Coupsals Primary Academy are being invited to submit their logos, with the winning one to be used on a uniform.

The school, which became an academy in January, already has a new logo for pupils' jumpers – but this new one will be featured on uniforms worn by Friends of Coupsals.

This group is formed of parents who organise events and fundraise. Louise Cohen, chairman, said: "We need to order a new uniform to wear at events and we wanted to have a new logo to represent the change of status to an academy."

"What better way to get the kids involved than to run a competition for them to design the logo."

The winning design will also be used on Facebook, and on all letters.

Decision due on homes

DEBRA FOX

PLANNING applications shaping Haverhill's future will be decided on today.

Three separate applications proposing homes for the town will go before St Edmundsbury Borough Council's Development Control Committee after months of debate.

While planning officers have recommended that the vacant Bell pub and the hall of Old Independent Church should be transformed into new homes, plans for a new block of flats have been pipped for refusal.

The application, from Prime Crest, outlines plans for 15 flats in a block on Anglian Place, off Burton End. Two blocks exist there already.

Residents living in nearby streets have complained about the impact the new homes will have on their lives.

Councillors deferred the application regarding The Bell at a previous meeting, following concerns over access to the site, and how any changes now will affect the town centre master-plan.

In January, officers agreed to investigate whether a proposal featuring no on site parking could be drawn up.

The third application calls for three flats to be built in the hall of the Old Independent Church on Hamlet Road.

As previously reported, a statement of need from the church said the application was the only way to rescue both the church and hall buildings from ruin.

The meeting started at 10am at West Suffolk House, Bury St Edmunds.

Race director to run in marathon

A KEEN athlete is taking on his biggest challenge yet in aid of a hospice charity.

Jack Tappin, who is director of HaverHalf, Haver10 and HaverTri, will compete in the London Marathon this year.

Mr Tappin, 27, has never taken part in a marathon before – and as well as going the distance, he wants to raise £2,000 for St Nicholas Hospice Care.

He said: "I've been able to develop my running over the last couple of years and am pleased with how I did in 2014, but am now ready to take another step."

Haverhill's first half marathon and 10k run were held last year, and raised £13,000 for the hospice.

The charity, which has its own outreach centre in Haverhill's Camps Road, cares for people with long term illnesses, and their families.

Jenny Basket is the charity's events and challenge fundraiser.

She said: "We are delighted Jack is running the London Marathon in aid of the hospice."

"We wish him all the best with his training, on the day and with his fundraising efforts."

The London Marathon is on April 26, the Haver10 is on April 12 and the HaverHalf is on October 25.

New life savers on the way for county

NEW defibrillators are on their way to communities across the east of England.

A thousand of the lifesaving pieces of kit will be distributed across six counties by the end of March.

Out of the first batch, 20 defibrillators will be allocated to Suffolk, 30 to Cambridgeshire and 40 to north Essex.

Anthony Marsh, chief executive of the East of England Ambulance Service Trust, said: "I'm delighted that we have started this important project to invest in the communities we serve by improving access to these lifesaving devices in key locations."

"Our ambulance crews aim to arrive at the scene of a cardiac arrest within minutes."

"However, every second counts and having a defibrillator on scene can make the vital difference between life or death."

Locations for the equipment will include sports centres, village halls and libraries.

Training will be provided for those at each location which is allocated a defibrillator.

Places for the remaining defibrillators will be decided in the coming weeks.

Haverhill market wins national prize

A NATIONAL award has been presented to Haverhill market.

The town was honoured at a national awards ceremony held in Birmingham last week.

The National Association of British Market Authorities (NABMA) award for best "Love Your Local Market" event was awarded following the town's first youth market and motorshow in 2014.

Cllr Alaric Pugh, St Edmundsbury Borough Council cabinet member for economic growth, said: "It is a great achievement for our work with the Haverhill market traders, to receive this national recognition."

"Each of these stalls is a small business and St Edmundsbury is always keen to look for new ways to support the economic growth of the market and of small businesses in general, and to encourage residents living in and around the town to shop locally, where possible."

The town's first youth market was held in May, in conjunction with local schools and Haverhill Town Council.

Youngsters keen to start their own business were encouraged to try their hand at a pitch and test out their enterprising idea.

The motorshow, with a range of vehicles, was held in July.

Both events will return to the town later this year.

NEWS IN BRIEF

Car set alight in street

A VAUXHALL Astra has been set on fire while parked in Haverhill.

The car was set alight on January 23 between 12am and 12.15am. It was parked to the rear of Park Road, off Teasel Close.

The front end of the vehicle, which is black, was completely burned out and substantial damage was caused to the car's interior.

Anyone with information should contact PC John Moore on 101.

You can also call Crimestoppers on 0800 555111.

Harry Potter fun at library

WITCHES and wizards are being invited to a Harry Potter-themed event at their local library.

Taking place today in Haverhill from 4.30pm, the special event will have a treasure hunt and book quiz for readers young and old.

Children, parents and staff are being encouraged to dress up as their favourite character from the JK Rowling series, for a spellbinding time.

Contact the library on (01440) 702638.

Wine tasting cancelled

AN EVENING of wine tasting has been cancelled.

The event, set for February 20 at West Wratting Village Hall, is going to be rescheduled for later in the year.

Money raised from the event was to go towards repairs to the village hall roof, and a similar event was popular with residents last year.

Valentine's Day

An Arena where you can feel love on 14th

WITH Valentine's Day approaching fast, men all around the country are starting to rummage around the back of the sofa or dust off their credit cards, and preparing to purchase a beautiful bouquet of flowers for the woman (or man!) of their dreams.

But where you live in the country can really make a difference, in terms of what size of bouquet you get, and how much your loved one spends on you. Top florist ArenaFlowers.com analysed over one million UK bouquet orders that it has delivered and found out who are the biggest spenders when it comes to floral deliveries.

The East came out as the second lowest average spenders on bouquets for their other halves. They spend an average of £33.06 compared to the romantic Scots, where the average spend is plenty more at £41.54 per bouquet.

Looking at the data by town and city

shows that if you're lucky enough to live in Cambridge, the average spent on flowers here is a more impressive £39.02. That'll ensure everything comes up, er, roses on the big day. However, if you happen to live in Norwich, don't get your hopes up; the average spent on flowers is far less at just £28.93. It's just not blooming fair...

And what of the recipients of these carefully selected sprays? Who are these mystery women (or men)? The top name inscribed on the card that comes with the flowers is 'Sarah', while the second most popular name is 'Susan' or 'Sue'. (It is Sue in Cambridge). In some cities outside of the East, the males are being treated to a floral show of love; 'Paul' is popular in Aberdeen, while there are a few lucky 'Davids' in Bath. Obviously the ladies like to treat their men to a floral delivery in these two fair cities.

ArenaFlowers.com also found that when it comes to flower type, roses are still very popular; the most popular kind of bouquet is a mix of roses and lilies, (as it is in Cambridge). But there are some mavericks out there who like to dare to be different; for example, Norwich, the most popular choice is British Alstromeria. Outside of the East of England there are certainly some daring choices with those in Northampton favouring the Fire and Ice bouquet and those in Rutland and Shrewsbury prefer to send a longer lasting gift of an indoor luxury basket.

Let's just hope none of them suffer from hayfever...

PARTNERSHIP: Members of Hong Kong Trade Development Council with West Suffolk councillors

Teaming up with overseas visitors

WEST Suffolk will welcome international visitors as part of an initiative to establish trade links with the region. The Hong Kong Trade Development Council (HKTDC) is coming to the district for the first Think Asia; Think Hong Kong: Finding Your Partners in Hong Kong business seminar to be held later this month. The seminar, held with St Edmundsbury Borough and Forest Heath District councils, will give businesses the chance to meet representatives from the HKTDC to learn more about how they can take on trading opportunities. David Marsden, representative for HKTDC, said: "There is a huge potential for business between West Suffolk and Hong Kong. "It is one of the most productive regions in the UK and is close to London."

Stand tall and fight depression

BOXING sessions have been helping young people battle depression at Haverhill Leisure Centre.

The 12-week programme, delivered by Abbeycroft Leisure, will start again at the end of February after celebrating a successful first run.

Praised by Olympic medalist and boxer Anthony Ogogo, the fitness programme aims to help people aged between 14 and 25 who are suffering with depression or anxiety.

Matt Hickey, health, fitness and physical activity development manager for Abbeycroft, said: "Experts have long believed that exercise releases chemicals in your brain that make you feel good."

"We also know that regular exercise can also boost your self-esteem and help you concentrate, sleep, look and feel better.

"We are taking this belief and putting it into practice in the community."

The Stand Tall Project invites participants to take part in weekly sessions based on boxing techniques which help with behaviour change, health and activity levels.

Stand Tall is part of the county's aim to become the most active county, and is funded by Sport England.

Mr Ogogo said: "For me boxing is not just about fighting and competition."

"It is a sport which keeps you fit and active, toning your body, developing stamina and increasing flexibility and speed. It is also fantastic for the mind, developing self control and confidence."

Figures have revealed that 80 per cent of the programme's participants reported an improvement in their mental wellbeing, and all raised their current exercise levels.

Stand Tall is also taking place in Bury St Edmunds.

If you are aged between 14 and 25, not doing any sport or physical activity and suffer with depression, anxiety or stress the project could be for you.

How to help loneliness with new campaign

A NEW campaign has been launched by health bodies in Suffolk to encourage people to beat loneliness.

The campaign, Loneliness - Make the Connection, starts a year long project focusing on loneliness and how it affects people.

The project is following in the footsteps of Age UK

Suffolk's Shine a Light on Loneliness.

Cllr Alan Murray, Suffolk County Council's cabinet member for health and adult care, said: "Loneliness is something that people can struggle to admit to and find even harder to discuss."

"It has no obvious signs or symptoms but can have a devastating impact on people's mental and physical health, with long term implications for people who are not given the support they need."

The campaign will ask people to make pledges to urge people to do their bit and help people fight loneliness.

Gardening 23

the Birthday party GUIDE

IT'S party time at Cambridge Junction as the venue is celebrating 25 years in the business. From February 12-14, they'll be celebrating away with help from Dylan Moran, a classic quiz night and a return to their early days with a club night no nineties teen could forget.

Here are the big events:

Scruffy-haired Moran, star of Black Books, will be trialing brand new material for his next stand-up show, Off The Hook.

Based in Edinburgh, the 43-year-old Irish born comedian was the youngest person to win the Perrier Comedy Award at 24 and made his (brilliant) film debut in Notting Hill as Rufus the thief with a book down his trousers.

More recently he toured America and featured in one of the most acclaimed films of 2014, the brooding Calvary, alongside Brendan Gleeson.

Things of Cambridge Junction: A Pub Quiz

This 25th anniversary

special from Cambridge Junction artist in residence Tom Roden comes with a bit of a twist.

Roden, of Cambridge theatre duo New Art Club (run with fellow artistic director Pete Shenton), will be asking questions to test the mettle of even the most diehard locals.

Brush up on your general knowledge, weird knowledge and all things Cambridge related, then it's time to get your heads down and start concentrating, but don't forget the beer and pork scratchings.

Cum Cum Again

Nineties fashion is massively back in (crop tops, spaghetti straps, slip dresses and chokers anyone?), so it only seems right for Cambridge Junction to bring back their original – first ever – club night, circa 1990.

The night itself will feature original DJs Paul Darking, Thom Bullock and Julian Butterfield, and it's strictly over 18s only.

From Russia with love

PRUSSIA'S oldest orchestra, the St Petersburg Symphony Orchestra, comes to Cambridge Corn Exchange on Thursday, February 12, with a passionate and stirring concert, the latest in the Cambridge News-backed Cambridge Classical Concert Series.

The history of the St Petersburg Symphony Orchestra began in 1931 when an ensemble was organised at the Leningrad Radio. During the Second World War Siege of Leningrad, the orchestra of Leningrad Radio was the only symphony orchestra remaining in the blockaded city. Fortunately for Cambridge audiences, no such blockades will be in place when this most prestigious of ensembles comes to town, conducted by the highly acclaimed conductor Vladimir Altschuler.

For readers who are able to get into Cambridge a little earlier in the evening, there is a pre-concert talk, starting at 6pm at the nearby Cambridge City Hotel. This entertaining and informative talk is given by local classical music expert James Day, and provides an excellent overview of the pieces of music you are about to hear, plus some fascinating insights into the composers and their lives.

At 7.30pm on the Corn Exchange stage, the concert begins with Shostakovich's Incidental Music from Hamlet. Shostakovich wrote music for 36 films, including Hamlet. The score is full of parody and highlights Hamlet's role as a 'holy fool', a figure which frequently appears in Russian music and literature and perhaps explains why Hamlet holds such an enduring appeal for Russian artists, writers and composers.

Tchaikovsky is another Russian composer with an extraordinary and dramatic life story. He conducted his Symphony No. 6 in St Petersburg in 1893 and nine days later he was dead, either from suicide or cholera, the cause of death still unclear. His Violin Concerto with which the concert continues is rousing and passionate, a consummate work from a composer at the peak of his powers. Soloist Alexander Sitkovetsky brings out all the piece's nuances with brilliance and panache in a performance which has to be seen to be believed. This astonishingly gifted violinist was one of Yehudi Menuhin's protégées.

Sibelius' deep affinity with Finland finds its fullest expression in the Karelia Suite, a haunting and sublime piece of music which Sibelius composed initially as incidental music for a pageant before reworking it into three movements.

Karelia is a Finnish province which is particularly full of folklore and was a favourite spot for Finnish artists in the 19th century. The suite caused such a stir at its premiere that one audience member exclaimed: "The noise in the hall was like an ocean in a storm. I could not distinguish a single note."

Corn Exchange audiences will have a much better experience as the combination of the venue's outstanding acoustics and more civilised audience behaviour means that each note will be perfectly audible.

The concert concludes with Tchaikovsky's Romeo and Juliet, generally considered his first great masterpiece.

Beauty of English rose

I'M not wanting to put a damper on romance, but I really begrudge my husband paying a fortune for roses on Valentine's Day when the same money could have gone on a living rose that I can plant in my garden and enjoy for years to come.

Indeed, roses may not be in bloom naturally in February, but they will provide you with plenty of colour and scent in the summer months if you give them a little TLC and plant them where they're happy. It's also now a perfect time to order bare-root roses to plant during the dormant season so they can get a head-start for summer.

There are so many types of roses but if you want to plant them among other specimens in beds and borders, then English Roses by David Austin are probably your best bet, they are repeat-flowering, reliable and often disease resistant (although always check on the label or ask someone if you're not sure). Many are good for cutting although personally I can't bear to cut my own roses. I would much rather they flourish in the garden, outside for all to see.

Good red roses are difficult to breed. The challenge is to get a good combination of both fragrance and health and dark red roses in particular are subject to burning in the sun. But if you have your heart set on one, look out for 'Darcey Bussell', pictured, a compact, bushy variety which flowers all summer, producing clusters of rosette-shaped flowers of deep crimson and a fruity scent. It's ideal for a smaller garden, a narrow border or even a large pot.

I always find red quite a hard colour to match, preferring the pinks and pastel shades of other English roses including the fragrant 'Gertrude Jekyll', which I grow up an obelisk in my mixed border with Clematis 'Nelly Moser', a beautiful pink and white-striped hybrid. Together, they provide a stunning display in June and beyond.

Roses are hungry feeders, so make sure you add plenty of organic matter such as well-rotted manure or compost to the soil before planting, digging a hole much bigger than the roots so that they can easily spread out and make sure the surrounding soil is cultivated, not compacted, or the roots won't spread. When planted, the base of the stems should be about 3in (7.5cm) below ground level. Newly-planted roses will also need to be kept well watered when they are trying to establish. Add rose fertiliser in March or April, at the start of the growing season, and again in June to repeat-flowering varieties and mulch them with compost in spring.

All roses need four or five hours of sunshine a day during the growing season to thrive, although some can take more shade than others. Avoid areas where there are overhanging branches and dry places where there would be too much competition from the roots of other trees and shrubs. Climbing roses such as 'Tess of the D'Urbervilles Climbing' should do well on an open north-facing wall.

Shorter companion plants can be used around them, allowing the roses to display their beauty to the full. Avoid using invasive perennials or shrubs which might overpower the roses. Instead, go for light, airy perennials such as lady's mantle (Alchemilla mollis), whose soft rounded leaves and lime-green flowers make a colourful base to your rose bushes and don't take away the glory of the rose flowers. Pale pink varieties like 'Eglantine' can be easily partnered with deep purple perennial salvias or perennial geraniums such as 'Johnson's Blue'. Copper-coloured specimens such as 'Pat Austin' make a good match for soft blue nepeta underneath.

The taller English Roses will add height and structure to the mixed border without the need for staking, while the more compact varieties are perfect for the front of the border. It is particularly important to plant roses in small groups in the border as this will create the most pleasing effect.

If you need to fill in space, good annuals which will combine well with roses include love-in-a-mist such as Nigella 'Miss Jekyll' or the feathery Cosmos bipinnatus, with its large single flowers in white, pink and purple.

And then, of course, we come to pruning – but that's a story for another day.

■ Following on from the success of The Nutcracker, the arts centre has a recorded broadcast of SWAN LAKE, the greatest of all romantic classical ballets, on February 8 at 3pm by The Bolshoi Ballet. Prince Siegfried's 21st birthday is a cause for great celebration with young girls competing for his attention during a majestic ceremony at the palace.

■ The arts centre has a live broadcast by the Royal Shakespeare Company of LOVE'S LABOUR'S LOST on February 11 at 7pm. It's summer 1914, dedicating themselves to a life of study, the king and his friends take an oath to avoid the company of women for three years – but then the Princess of France and her ladies-in-waiting arrive... Book at the same time as Love's Labour's Won on March 4 and get 10% off the adult prices.

■ Visit the arts centre on February 13 for THE NEIL DIAMOND STORY – the life of a legend in song. Iconic songs from a hit filled musical career such as Cracklin' Rosie, Sweet Caroline, Love On The Rocks, America, Forever in Blue Jeans, Play Me and Girl and You'll be a Woman Soon feature alongside much loved album tracks and more recent acoustic material. Bob Drury's one-man show is a 'must see' for all Diamond fans. In the show Bob talks a little about Neil

BALLET: Swan Lake.

Diamond's life and the background to some of the songs. As well as all the block-buster hits, Bob also includes a number of lesser known acoustic songs with just a guitar and often with his own arrangements of the songs. Come along at 7.30pm and a cracklin' time will be had by all!

■ On the cinema front the arts centre has a further screening of THE IMITATION GAME (12A) on February 5 at 7.30pm telling the story of Alan Turing, the British mathematician, who led the charge to crack the German Enigma Code that helped the Allies win the Second World War.

■ Due to a full house on previous screenings, the arts centre has an additional showing of MR TURNER (12A), Mike Leigh's study of Britain's great landscape artist J M W Turner on February 7 at 7.30pm. UNBROKEN (15) showing on February 9 and 10 at 7.30pm, is directed by Angelina Jolie. It chronicles the life of Louis Zamperini, an Olympian runner who, along with two other crewmen in the Second World War, survived in a raft for 47 days after a plane crash, only to be caught by the Japanese Navy and sent to a prisoner-of-war camp.

■ Unfortunately, due to ill health THAT EIGHTIES BAND musical tribute to the 1980s on February 14 at 8pm has been postponed, the date still to be confirmed, watch this space!

■ Events to look forward to are the Haverhill Silver Band IN CONCERT – LOCAL BRASS on February 15 at 7.30pm, a 60s SPECTACULAR on February 18 at 8pm, starring The Dakotas (stars of the British Invasion event in the USA) with special guests Sounds Force 5, and a National Theatre recorded broadcast of TREASURE ISLAND on February 17.

Passat is star depreciator

PREMIUM CAR quality with a mainstream new vehicle price tag will spell success for the all-new Volkswagen Passat – shown above – in the battle of the ‘big five’ company cars, say independent experts CAP Automotive.

It's a sector that is hotly contested by five giants of the company car world – Audi A4, BMW 3 Series, Ford Mondeo, Mercedes C Class and Volkswagen Passat – which means every new launch is critical for a manufacturer.

Key to success in this market is driver appeal to attract company car choosers, together with competitive depreciation so that fleets can offer the best possible contract hire rates.

According to CAP the all new Passat wins on both counts, with premium car quality normally associated with prestige badges and lower cash depreciation forecast than for any of its German rivals.

CAP's future used car value forecasting experts – whose ‘Gold Book’ residual value forecasting tool is the industry's independent benchmark – for tomorrow's second hand prices – say new Passat will retain 37.4 per cent of its value after three years and 60,000 miles.

It means the completely re-engineered Passat is expected to lose just over £13,400 over three years, compared with £15,880 for the equivalent Mercedes C-Class, £16,970 for the Audi A4 and £17,445 for the BMW 3 Series.

The strength of the Volkswagen brand – which is now knocking on the door of premium car status in the form of the new Passat – is revealed by the fact that CAP is forecasting a three year old car to be worth more than its BMW and Audi rivals at the same point.

CAP senior forecasting editor Dylan Setterfield commented: “People might reasonably assume that a Volkswagen would generally be worth less as a used car than the equivalent models from more traditionally premium image manufacturers, like Audi and BMW.

“In reality, though, we are anticipating the new Passat to be worth £10,900 in the trade market, after three years, which is £325 more than our forecast for the Audi A4 and £725 above the BMW 3 Series.

“It's fair to say that this new model will keep the loyal Passat chooser happy while tempting those drivers who want a premium car without the premium new price tag to try a Volkswagen for the first time.”

Five-star rating for new Fabia

THE new Skoda Fabia has received a five-star safety rating from EuroNCAP, the industry safety organisation.

The Fabia was evaluated by Euro-NCAP for adult passenger protection, child safety, safety assistance systems and passenger protection, and awarded the maximum five stars in each category.

With the latest Fabia awarded the full five stars, the entire Skoda range comes with a five-star rating, including the smallest Citigo model.

“With innovative safety systems and a comprehensive safety

SKODA FABIA: Euro-NCAP delight package, our new model is setting standards in its segment. Receiving the award for being the safest small car in the Euro-NCAP crash tests confirms this once again,” said Dr Frank Welsch, Skoda board member for technical development.

CHEROKEE TRAILHAWK: New Jeep

Cherokee gets 'Trail Rated' new Trailhawk

JEEP is enhancing the popular Cherokee range with the introduction to the UK of the first 'Trail Rated' version, the Trailhawk. The most capable Jeep Cherokee model available, and the most accomplished mid-size

SUV in the segment, the 2015 Cherokee Trailhawk comes with a 3.2-litre V6 petrol engine and a nine-speed automatic gearbox. Fully off-road capable, the Trailhawk is fitted with a low-range transmission including Jeep's Selec-Terrain with Rock mode. The 2015 Jeep Cherokee Trailhawk with the standard off-road package is Trail Rated. Its 'Trail Rated' badge indicates that the vehicle is designed to perform in a variety of challenging off-road conditions identified by five key performance categories: traction, ground clearance, manoeuvrability, articulation and water fording.

Skoda tops UK satisfaction poll

SKODA: Keeping punters from every area of the consumer experience happy

ŠKODA UK is celebrating this week after the brand topped the automotive table in the latest UK Customer Satisfaction Index Summary (UKCSI) produced by the Institute of Customer Service. Skoda was in the top 10 per cent of all organisations across all industry sectors.

Skoda achieved an index of 82.7 to scoop the top spot in the automotive sector, putting the brand 4.1 points ahead of the average for the automotive industry (78.6).

Overall this places Skoda 18th of all the 197 organisations which featured in the UKCSI's findings, among other major consumer brands such as John Lewis, Marks & Spencer and Amazon.

David Allen, head of customer quality and network development for Skoda UK, commented: "Customer service is at the heart of what we do. We appreciate feedback from organisations such as the Institute of Customer Service to validate the steps that we take to ensure that each and every Skoda customer has a positive experience.

"This month's findings are a testament to the hard work of each of the brand's 134 retailers. I'd like to extend my thanks to them in helping us to bring our second-to-none service and award-winning range to customers across the UK."

The UKCSI is the national measure of customer service, rating 180 leading organisations across 13 sectors. Launched in January 2008, it includes responses from over 10,000 individual customers.

The Institute of Customer Service is an independent professional membership body for customer service.

The Institute's purpose stands to improve customer experience and drive business performance by delivering tangible benefits to its organisational and individual members. The Institute boasts a membership body of more than 400 organisations from across the private, public and third sectors; and more than 5,000 individual members.

Jo Causon, chief executive of the Institute of Customer Service, commented: "Many organisations are struggling to keep pace with a business environment that has undergone rapid change in recent months... [but] some brands are improving customer satisfaction by operating in an agile and innovative way..."

Snow joke as Rovers suffer defeat in bizarre match

A BIZARRE match at the New Croft saw Haverhill Rovers suffer their joint-second biggest defeat of the season as they went down 5-0 at home to Kirkley & Pakefield in the Premier Division.

Despite there being two inches of snow when the players went out to warm up, Saturday's match went ahead and was duly completed.

Player-manager Michael Shinn made no excuses about the loss and was philosophical about the score. "I don't think we'll ever see another game like it," he said. "It wasn't really playable but the conditions were the same for both teams and, in fairness, Kirkley played the conditions better than us." Kirkley made the breakthrough after 28 minutes and they netted again shortly before half time. Dalton O'Brien had a great chance to pull a goal back for the hosts 10 minutes into the second half but the Kirkley keeper made a fine save to deny him. Rovers were then made to pay when Kirkley grabbed their third in the 66th minute. With the conditions deteriorating, the visitors netted twice more late on to round off a strange afternoon of football. "The most disappointing thing was that we threw the towel in towards the end," said Shinn. "They deserved the win though. It was one of those days for us unfortunately so we'll put it behind us and move on."

Paffett joy at switch to ART GP

GARY Paffett has expressed his delight at booking a drive with the ART GP team for the forthcoming DTM campaign.

The Haverhill driver will lead the team, who are new to the series for 2015 having made their name in the F3 Euroseries, GP2 and GP3, and will be joined by Austrian racer Lucas Auer.

For Paffett, who won the DTM title in 2005, it is a fresh challenge after racing for the HWA team for the last eight years.

But with ART GP having agreed to race Mercedes cars this season, Paffett retains his links with the German marque – he was also test driver for the McLaren F1 team until the Woking-based outfit decided to switch from Mercedes to Honda as their engine suppliers for this year.

Paffett said: "For me, this is a great opportunity to bring my whole experience to bear on a new project and put my stamp on it. ART are a famous racing team and have achieved success in many top racing series.

"My goal in the DTM is to shape this outfit into a winning team. ART already have the ambition, the resources and the ability to achieve that in 2015. It will not be easy, but then it never is.

"Hopefully, we can be competitive from the very first race and keep up with the other Mercedes drivers thanks to a combination of their technical aptitude and my experience."

Driven: Gary Paffett has moved to the ART GP team

Williamson earns battling victory for Haverhill

HAVERHILL ladies battled the odds to earn a 1-0 win over Huntingdon in 3NW (S).

Making the long trip to Kimbolton, the game kicked off early, with Haverhill limited to only 11 players and no replacements.

They were dealt a blow only seven minutes into the match when Jane Farrow sustained a facial injury, and when she returned, Amanda Forbes' involvement in the game came to an end as she sustained a knee injury.

Mandy Williamson injured her knee in a fall on the slippery surface but battled on in defence for Haverhill.

It was goalless at half time, but Aisha Shuamazzi was causing problems for the Huntingdon defence, earning three short corners, and from one such play, she set up Williamson to score the only goal of the game.

Despite having the numerical disadvantage, Haverhill had the majority of the play in the Huntingdon half to earn a deserved win.
